SAN BERNARDINO WOMAN WEDS HERE

Is Married to Globe Man—
Granted Divorce Last Week in California.

A marriage license was issued in El Paso yesterday to Charles Muller and Miss Edith Reid.

Justice McClintock married the couple at the St. Regis hotel in this city yesterday.

Back of this wedding there is an interesting story, and a romance, according to the San Bernardino, (Cal.) Sun, of Tuesday. Says the Sun:

Miss Margaret Edith Reid, who was until Monday of last week Mrs. Margaret Edith Reid Jones, a fascinating young matron of Rialto, leaves her home among the orange groves this morning for El Paso, thither bound to be joined in wedlock to Charles Muller, of Globe, Arizona, a wealthy mining operator.

Miss Reid, as she has been known since Judge F. F. Oster granted her an interlocutory decree of divorce a week ago, has had an unhappy existence since her first matrimonial venture with Charles Jones, which commenced June 14, 1907, the climax of her misfortunes coming when a series of sensational house robberies was brought to a conclusion soon after her wedding by the arrest of the Blake-Place-Jones gang, in which her young husband was interested.

Mrs. Place, his aunt, practically being the ringleader of the outfit, and her husband's brothers being drawn into the law's dragnet.

A Star Witness.

Miss Reid, then Mrs. Charles Jones, saved her husband from the tolls by appearing as the star witness for the prosecution, and through her damaging testimony came very near landing the whole gang in the penitentiary for long terms.

She proved an admirable witness on the stand, matching her cleverness with that of attorney Frank B. Daley, counsel for the prisoners.

Jones repaid her kindness by deserting her. Monday of last week she told her story on the stand, in her suit for divorce, explaining that though Jones made good wages as a machinist, he could not support her and the child by a former marriage. He sent them to her parents, at Rialto, promising to pay $20 monthly toward their support and failed.

She declared that there is now a warrant for his arrest at Los Angeles, charged with deserting his child, who is at the home of a Mrs. Spearman, who is complaining against him.

Love Finds a Way.

In speaking of her forthcoming marriage Miss Reid expressed a repugnance of notoriety. Miss Reid stated that the marriage violation certainly occurred upon her arrival at El Paso, and following the nuptials she and her new husband will make an extended journey, including Cuba in their bridal trip.

In speaking of her journey to the altar Miss Reid stated last night that she expected to be joined by Mr. Muller at Bowie, Arizona, both going on to El Paso together.

ROSENTHAL DIAMONDS ARE STILL AT CUSTOM HOUSE
The Rosenthal diamonds are yet in the El Paso custom house unclaimed. It will be necessary for either Abe or Max Rosenthal to make regular entry of the diamonds in person or give their attorney the power of attorney necessary to enter the diamonds.

Mr. Pinchot expresses his profound regret at leaving the forest service and pays tribute to the faithfulness and high quality of service rendered by the men with whom he worked.

"Today that movement expresses one of our deepest national convictions," he says, "and the principles for which it stands are received as axiomatic. It is only the execution of them which remains in doubt."

"The great conference of governors in the white house in May, 1908, led to the appointment of the national conservation commission whose report gave us a new conception of the value of our natural resources. Together with President Roosevelt's message transmitting its report, the recommendation of the commission furnished a complete statement of the conservation policy, met our needs squarely and prescribed the remedy. They include definite, practical recommendations for the protection of forests against fire and for equitable forest taxation."

"The classification of the public domain was strongly urged and principles for its use and disposition were laid down. The necessity for preserving the fertility of our soils and developing their agricultural value by drainage and otherwise was covered and particular attention was given to the needs of retaining our phosphate lands, then in danger of absorption by a foreign syndicate."

Mr. Pinchot then traces the recommendations of the conference, applauding and endorsing them all.

"In a word," he said, "the report of the commission and the message taken together, set forth a comprehensive, definite statement for the conservation of our natural resources." Then he proceeded:

"At this critical period when the goal was in sight, enemies of conservation in congress not only succeeded in preventing an appropriation with which to pursue the work but tried to prevent its progress by the passage of the Taft amendment to the sundry civil bill. Thereupon the work of the national conservation commission was stopped."

"The recommendations of the commission still wait for action. All wise men will agree that the situation is serious. The Taft amendment was more than a mistake—it was a deliberate betrayal of the future. The dangers which confront the conservation movement today must be met by positive action in congress. No action will be equivalent to coal action and will have the same results."

"Unless congress acts, the water powers will pass into the hands of special interests without charge and without limit of time. So with the phosphate deposits on public lands, when the withdrawals which now protect them are removed. So with the enormously valuable coal deposits in Alaska, which the present law would sell for ten dollars per acre."

"The danger of bad legislation is no less serious. The special interests must

SPECIAL INTERESTS ARE AT THE THROAT OF THE NATION

Forester Pinchot, Recently
Removed, Says the Country's Resources Are in Great Danger.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—"The conservation of natural resources and the conservation of popular government are both at stake. The one needs conservation no less than the other."

This statement epitomizes the formal announcement made public by Gifford Pinchot, who was recently removed as chief of the forest service. The former official declares the great moral issue that now faces the country, is not the loss of natural resources, so much as whether special interests or the people shall rule. The statement in part is as follows:

"The supreme test of movements and measures is the welfare of the plain people. I am as ready to support the administration when it moves toward this paramount end as I am to oppose it when it moves away."

Mr. Pinchot expresses his profound regret at leaving the forest service and pays tribute to the faithfulness and high quality of service rendered by the men with whom he worked.

"Today that movement expresses one of our deepest national convictions," he says, "and the principles for which it stands are received as axiomatic. It is only the execution of them which remains in doubt."

"The great conference of governors in the white house in May, 1908, led to the appointment of the national conservation commission whose report gave us a new conception of the value of our natural resources. Together with President Roosevelt's message transmitting its report, the recommendation of the commission furnished a complete statement of the conservation policy, met our needs squarely and prescribed the remedy. They include definite, practical recommendations for the protection of forests against fire and for equitable forest taxation."

"The classification of the public domain was strongly urged and principles for its use and disposition were laid down. The necessity for preserving the fertility of our soils and developing their agricultural value by drainage and otherwise was covered and particular attention was given to the needs of retaining our phosphate lands, then in danger of absorption by a foreign syndicate."

Mr. Pinchot then traces the recommendations of the conference, applauding and endorsing them all.

"In a word," he said, "the report of the commission and the message taken together, set forth a comprehensive, definite statement for the conservation of our natural resources." Then he proceeded:

"At this critical period when the goal was in sight, enemies of conservation in congress not only succeeded in preventing an appropriation with which to pursue the work but tried to prevent its progress by the passage of the Taft amendment to the sundry civil bill. Thereupon the work of the national conservation commission was stopped."

"The recommendations of the commission still wait for action. All wise men will agree that the situation is serious. The Taft amendment was more than a mistake—it was a deliberate betrayal of the future. The dangers which confront the conservation movement today must be met by positive action in congress. No action will be equivalent to coal action and will have the same results."

"Unless congress acts, the water powers will pass into the hands of special interests without charge and without limit of time. So with the phosphate deposits on public lands, when the withdrawals which now protect them are removed. So with the enormously valuable coal deposits in Alaska, which the present law would sell for ten dollars per acre."

"The danger of bad legislation is no less serious. The special interests must no longer be allowed to take what they choose out of the great property of all the people. Those who steal public lands steal homes from men and women who need them. Congress can stop the pillage or congress can let it go on.

"The first great immediate danger is that the water powers will be lost; second that the coal lands will be lost. But these specific dangers of public loss are merely parts of the great issues between the special interests and the rest of us. That issue is whether this country shall be managed by men for human welfare, or by money for profit."

"It is a tremendous issue, far greater than any man's personal feelings or personal fortunes."
